Colour and draw your own patterns on the animals below. Will you go for spots and stripes or something really wild?

In the seahorse species, it isn’t the mother who gives birth to its babies, it’s the dad!

Each year, herds of zebra travel great distances across Kenya and Tanzania to reach greener and tastier grass. It’s called The Great Migration.

Macaw parrots of the Amazon rainforest can often be found licking the salty clay from cliffs. It adds important nutrients to their diet.

Find more activities in our new Let’s Explore activity books! Available at bookstores and lonelyplanet.com/kids